JT. BOARD APPROVES PROPERTIES FOR NEW SCHOOL, ADOPTS $676,000 BUDGET

The right to purchase any or all of some 50 acres of land for a new two million dollar high school on or east of the Warren borough line off Fifth ave., E., was granted the Joint School Committee of the Warren Area Joint School Board at a meeting of the latter group Monday night. A 1957-58 budget of $676,113 was also adopted by the board.

Committee member J. Russell Hanson first reminded the Joint Board of the resolution passed last December naming the so-called Swick Site on Fifth ave. as the location for a new high school and then presented the Joint Committee's resolution of March 11 that recommended to use for the new school the properties belonging to Swick (Western portion), Rudolph, Link, Valone, Anderson, Nuhfer, and Huber-Raedaker. All are located outside of the borough.

The recommendation giving the joint committee the "go-ahead" on selecting the portions necessary was passed by a vote of 30 to 10 (by individuals), and 7 to 2 by the boards represented.

Voting negative on the resolution were J. M. Miley, J. Sleeman, D. Dickerson, F. Bauer, Clarendon borough; A. Saylor, Mead township; L. M. Schaeffer, G. Ruhlman, M. Tremblay, F. Nollinger, Pleasant township; and M. G. Keller, Warren borough. Pleasant and Clarendon were the two representative boards with a majority "no" vote.

Seven of the 47 members of the board were absent.

At the December meeting of the Joint Board the Glade township site was approved by a vote of 27 to 9 with the stipulation that the area be surveyed in connection with engineering and architectural studies determine the best location and the amount of land needed.

The architectural firm of Meyers, Krider, Werle and Ellenberger of Erie, which has been engaged by the board, recommends a minimum of 28 acres to be used for the new building. It now appears likely that the Joint Committee will agree with the architects if a greater amount will be more practical.

Over 70 visitors were present at

Monday night's session -- a good portion of these from the citizens committee for a new school, some in a contingent opposing the proposed site, and others just interested.

Mr. Werle of the architectural firm was also on hand to present the site situation in general and to discuss roads, etc.

The budget adopted by the Joint Board for 1957-58 ranges $82,463 higher than for the current year. Major increases are accounted for by teacher salaries and textbooks.

A RESOLUTION

(Editor's Note: The following is the resolution passed by the Warren Area Joint School Board on Monday, March 18, 1957.)

RESOLVED, by the Warren Area Joint School Board, in accordance with the power reserved to it in the Jointure Agreement of the constituent School Boards comprising this Jointure requiring that the selection of school sites be made by the Joint Board, that the Board does hereby select as a site for the proposed new high school the premises hereinafter described, or so much thereof as may be approved by the Joint Committee, to which Committee is specifically delegated the authority to determine the quantity and boundaries of such site within the described premises; and be it further resolved, that the Joint Committee negotiate with the owners of said premises for agreement of terms of purchase of their respective ownerships of the real estate so chosen, and thereafter, in the event of disagreement with any owners as to terms of purchase, to enter upon, take possession of and occupy said premises so chosen, designate and mark the boundary lines thereof under right of eminent domain; be it further resolved, that title to said real estate shall, in accordance with the provisions of Section 1704 of the School Code, as amended, be held in the name of Warren Area Joint School District.

Burke, junior, secretary. The class listing is for the current year. Like the democracy they live in, the high school candidates for student council offices were permitted to stage campaign speeches and balloting by students was through regular voting machines.

THE "PLEASE KNOCK" SIGN on this door was ignored by North Warren Volunteer Firemen early last Friday evening when fire broke out on the James Proper property in North Warren.

The large shack, used as a youngster's playhouse, was completely gutted by the fire.

A QUARTER-MILLION DOLLAR expansion program by the DeLuxe Metal Furniture company, a local shelving firm, was started externally Monday with a ground breaking ceremony at the Warren plant site.

Planned and already under way are expanded production, shipping and administrative facilities. Two large press brakes have been installed and further improvements call for the installation of new painting facilities employing the electrostatic principle of paint application. This will be part of the overall improved paint handling and mixing room facilities.

DeLuxe has increased its personnel from 135 in 1955 to well over 200 at the present, and the present rate of growth presages the employment of 400 people by 1960. The firm's payroll exceeds $1,000,000 yearly.

Presently third of 186 shelving manufacturing companies in the United States, DeLuxe stands number one in national acceptance as the outstanding and original boltless shelving manufacturer.

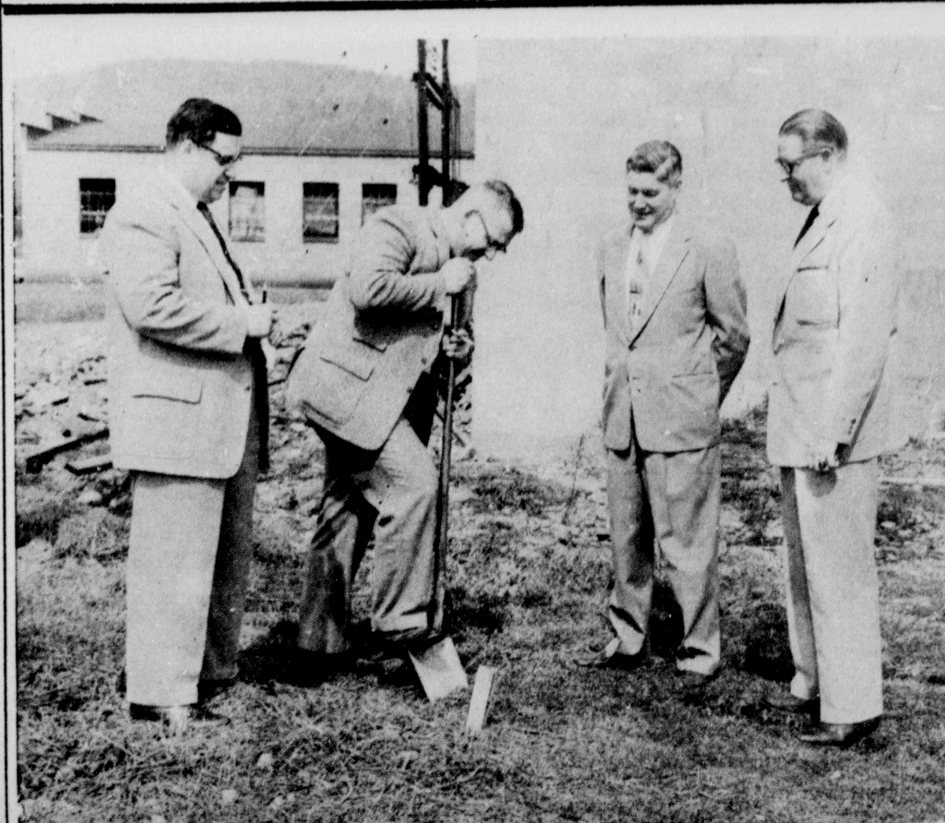

Taking part in Monday's ceremony were (l. to r.) Bernard Gofberg, general manager; Al Amos, plant manager; Wyllys Johnson, personnel manager; and R. H. Friebershauser, general sales manager.

THE WARREN ART GROUP entertained Mr. James Beaty, art instructor of Latrobe high school, at a dinner Friday evening in the YWCA. The affair took place prior to an address the art enthusiast presented at Jefferson auditorium.

Among those attending the affair were (l. to r.) standing -- Mrs. Marian Bibeau, chairman of the Art Sponsors committee of the Group;

Mrs. Clifford Gordon, president; Mrs. Mary Cullinane, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lawrence Whitten, recording secretary; and Miss Sybil McCrea, program chairman.

Seated -- Mrs. Carl Sorenson, Clarence Pearson, Mrs. C. J. Cray, Mr. Beaty, Mrs. Howard Boyd, Mrs. Wendell Kahle, and Mrs. Lloyd Smith.

LIBERAL ANACHRONISM

"There Shall Be No Night" was originally written in 1939 and was about the Russian invasion of Finland, which was somewhat complicated by the intervention of Nazi Germany and contained all the latest twists of liberal thought of the time. Among other things, it contained such lines as: "You Americans are so righteous about the crimes of the Nazis and so lenient about the crimes of the Soviet Union. They are the same crimes.

While such an idea -- that American intellectuals liked to apologize for Communist behavior which they found unforgivable in the Nazis -- was fairly novel in 1939, it is fairly ridiculous today, the scales having fallen a long time ago about Communism, even in the most left wing intellectual circles in this country. However, as presented the other night on Hallmark Playhouse, with a distinguished cast headed by Charles Boyer and Katherine Cornell, all these embarrassing anachronisms of liberal thought were still distressingly present.

My own admiration for the late Mr. Robert E. Sherwood, one of the most admirable and one of the dearest of men, is boundless, but I do feel that this particular play was more or less a burst of contemporary 1939 indignation which should not be revived now or ever. It is almost like one of those old World War I songs: "If you don't like your Uncle Sam, then go back to your home o'er the sea," which should be sung only in fun.

Morton Wishengrad made the adaptation and transferred Mr. Sherwood's indignation from Finland to Hungary, where it fitted about as well as a Roman toga on Sen. McCarthy. It was a pity, too, because this was Charles Boyer's debut in live television and he was enormously professional and competent and impressive in a role as a Nobel Prize-winning scientist, which took every bit of his enormous authority to pull off.

Not only were the ideas themselves more than a little dated, but this type of playwriting has pretty well had its day. It is a sort of play which is characterized by onstage arguments and off-stage shooting. The onstage arguments generally revolve around the idea: Should we or should we not get involved in the offstage shooting. I thought we had answered that question once and for all by getting into the Second World War and into the Korean war. At any rate, as dramatic material it has lost its force.

There were a whole series of these plays, many of which seemed to have been written by Maxwell Anderson even when they weren't, and in all of them the hero says in the first act that getting killed is a futile business, no matter how noble the cause. In the last act, he swings around to the idea that getting one's self killed, while still futile, is absolutely necessary in some situations which it would be intolerable to live under. The hero then goes out and gets killed, but not before writing a letter to his wife or his sweetheart or his son, explaining why he is doing this thing. Then the letter is read by the wife or the sweetheart or the son and the third act curtain steals down on the shamed audience, which is left with the idea that each one of them should be out defending the barricades instead of sitting in a theater.

While that idea may be arguable, I don't think the play writing is defensible. You set up an intolerable situation then point your finger to the audience and say: "What are you doing about it?" "There Shall Be No Night," started out as a rather chatty and discursive exercise in parlor liberalism and, as the shooting outside got more violent, the arguments on stage more and more resembled speeches at the Students Union.

Miss Cornell's role in the midst of all this oratory was one of unflinching nobility, which seemed rather to have been carved in marble than written in English. In the end, having lost both her son and her husband, she still held her chin high and she read that final letter with the charm and presence which amply reflected her thirty years as a great star of the stage. I devoutly hope she was paid a great deal of money for it.

SCHOOLS OF THE FUTURE

This planning of a new high school for an area the size of that which will be served by the Warren plant now under consideration is one that requires real vision and a willingness to trust the judgment of those whose business is education. Without good advice in the educational field, very few lay boards, if any, would be completely qualified to build a modern school.

Gone is the day when four walls, a few seats and a desk provided a school. We doubt if such a combination ever really did, but if those of other years had been given anything better they probably would not have been able to staff it or intelligently utilize it.

A high school today has a far greater job to do than was the case when most of us were attending one. More is expected of the educators today, and there are more students expecting it. Even communities whose size has not increased very much have more boys and girls in school.

A simple contrast between yesterday and today in this respect may reveal something about tomorrow to us. A few years ago a large percentage of our young people were leaving school as soon as possible, many of them in their freshman year. Today most of them are continuing into the upper grades, and a much larger percentage of them is being graduated.

However, because of the awareness of the value of education and the need for a diploma to even get a job in many plants, college today has become as essential to those who really want a chance to succeed as a high school diploma was a few years ago.

The result is that the boy who once quit when he was a freshman in high school now is finishing school. And the one who years ago was satisfied with a high school education now is going on to college.

This places a greater weight of responsibility on the high school than ever before. The pupil load is greater and the teaching qualifications must be higher in order to meet the demand of a curriculum that should be broad enough to prepare students for college or to enter the highly competitive business world.

Tomorrow this will be even more acute. In fact it won't be very long before high schools will be expected to provide junior college facilities and teachers. The colleges already are crowded and the answer is to create junior colleges that will screen out the students who either are not sure what they want or may not even be convinced that they are going to finish college.

With two years of junior college training they will be qualified to enter plants that provide on-the-job training. And if this can be provided locally, the costly years in college will be avoided by many who cannot afford to experiment with their limited or borrowed finances.

The Department of Public Instruction says there is a tidal wave of students flooding the colleges and that one answer may be community-sponsored junior colleges using high school facilities and teachers. With most of our teachers already working at odd jobs in the evenings in order to support their families, here would be an opportunity for many of them to earn extra money in their own profession. The physical plant of the high school should be satisfactory, especially in modern schools and those which are planned with night classes for junior college students in mind.

The better junior colleges, according to Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, would eventually expand and acquire their own facilities. Which suggests to us that a school with the forward look today might earn a fair income in the future through tuition from students coming from a large surrounding area.

Our reminder is not the costly one which many immediately will have you believe. The fact is it might be a way to help finance a modern high school, and certainly a way to keep good teachers happy.

Community junior colleges very often are self-supporting through tuition and fees. Eventually we do not doubt that additional help will come from the state if junior college subjects are made available. The state has a state college problem and certainly will act to relieve the crowded condition by compensating schools which help relieve the load by adding night junior college classes to their curriculums.

Today nearly half the students entering college will leave before the end of their sophomore year. Some must work, others become discouraged.

The one would find it easier to find work at home and would require less financial help. The other would not have wasted so much money finding out he didn't want college.

This screening out of students who find college difficult would let the colleges give greater attention to the juniors and seniors, and this in turn would make more teachers available for high school and junior college positions.

It is a rather obvious aspect of tomorrow's problem, and deserves much thought by those who today are building schools. It is another reason for plenty of room. We must remember that a county seat such as Warren is very apt to end up by being the junior college center for the area. It may even find the juniors and seniors coming to its high school, and junior college students attending it at night.

Education is growing, and we who suffered through a less enlightened age must be alert to what is best and what is needed. At least we can be prepared for expansion and can provide a broad base on which to work in the future.

Editorial Briefs

SLANTED JOURNALISM

A headline on the front page of the Warren daily last Tuesday read, "Large Crowd on Hand to Protest Purchase of Swick Site for the Proposed New Area High School". In the body of the story it said that nearly fifty persons were present to protest the Swick site.

Now the fact is that there was a large crowd on hand, but the vast majority of them were not there to protest the purchase. They were there because they heard such a protest was to be made and they attended to support the board in its action.

The number present was over seventy, and a very small percentage of them had anything to say against the purchase. Those there to support the purchase kept quiet for the obvious reason that the protesters were poorly informed and were not impressing a board which has worked long months on the school site problem and believes it has come up with the best answer.

But it is unfortunate that we have reporters who will slant stories concerning a project that is so vital to the future of our area. The least we in the news mediums can do is provide the facts and let the public and the public's officials decide.

CONSISTENT

However, this policy of sticking the public's head in the sand probably is consistent with the practice of refusing to print the portions of many meeting notices last year. Secretaries found it impossible in many instances to have it mentioned in daily print that their organizations had voted in favor of a new school on the Swick site. How do you like your free press?

NOW FOR SEWERS

Warren is being very unrealistic about its sanitary sewer system. This is strikingly emphasized by the consideration now being given to the sewers that serve the east Fifth ave. area and possibly are destined to serve the new high school.

Council has refused several people outside the borough the right to connect onto borough sewers because of a rule it once passed prohibiting such a procedure. This seems a bit near-sighted in a community that is fast filling its building lots and must look to the hills for expansion.

A far more practical rule would be to consider every hillside street as though it might some day go to the top of the slope. Any sewer placed beneath it should be of sufficient size to serve as many homes as might be built above it.

In the long run this certainly would save money. No sewers would need be exhumed and replaced. Homes outside the boroughs could be added for a designated fee.

In the case of east Fifth we might as well face the fact that there are some very excellent building lots in that area. Already we know of people who plan to build there, school or no school, and it will not surprise us if a street or two develop along the ridge of this hill from Fifth to Quaker rd.

It always has seemed a bit unsanitary to us for Warren to build itself into a valley and insist that the neighbors above dump their sewers into the ground. Would it not be far more practical for all concerned to hook them onto the sewers and charge them for it?

We are now faced with a new high school on upper Fifth. This will be used by some as another block to be thrown at the site. But it is not very realistic to hold back education for the cost of a short line of sewer pipe. We doubt if the entire line would need replacing, if any at all. It is possible that an eight inch line is adequate.

We will be hearing about this from two groups of engineers. The borough is having its boys check the drainage, porosity, and potential volume to determine what is required. The school board has its architects who also are making a study of the situation.

If the worst is learned and a new sewer must be laid we believe it is of much greater importance than some phases of our current paving program. If it will provide us with an adequate school, built to fill the long range needs of our town, it will be a small part of the two million, five hundred thousand dollar cost.

Most of those who say otherwise are quibbling.

Late SportSCHOOLBOY PLAYOFFS

Strong Vincent cagemen, who earned the District 10 crown by defeating Meadville and Grove City, moved up the ladder last night by slipping in a 63-62 victory over District 9's Clearfield. The winning basket came in the last seven seconds.

This gives the Erieites the opportunity to play Oliver of Pittsburgh Saturday night in the western PIAA semi-finals.

The Sharon Tigers were forced into a late rally Wednesday night to claim the WPIAL A championship with a 56-55 triumph against McKeesport. Both teams had identical 24-0 records going into the contest.

Last Saturday in semi-round play the Tigers nipped Charleroi 41-37 before 5000 fans at Pitt FieldHouse and McKeesport advanced with a 56-45 victory with Ford City.

In the Class B circuit Tuesday Mercer, District 10 winner, downed Karns City 55-47 in the western regional semi-finals, while Shan-nock Valley upset Wampum 73-58 for its first WPIAL B crown. On Friday Mercer continued its climb by dumping Girard 69-62 and Karns City eliminated Port Allegany 63-57 in District 9.

District 10's Fairview failed Monday in the western regional Class C finals as Sykesville grabbed a 59-57 decision.

STYLISTS BEATEN

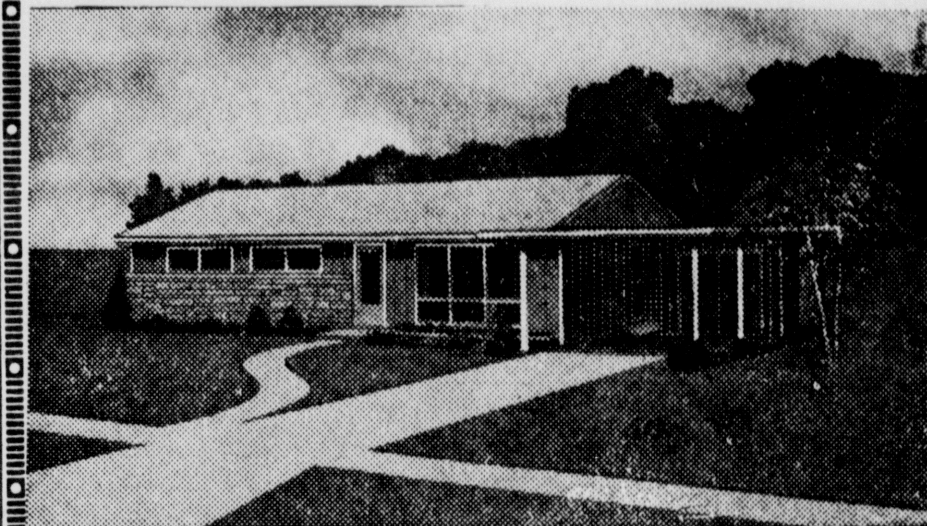

The Warren Style Shop's bid for a semi-final berth in the 10th annual Jamestown YMCA open tournament failed last night as the locals were cut down 81-56 by the Mayville Indies.

Hud Berdine put forth a 19-point scoring effort for the depleted Warren lineup, which was out-distanced in every period.

In earlier contests the Style Shop was high man in the game with 18 upset the Jamestown "Y" Varsity counters.

When arraigned before Justice Ervine Branch Wednesday morning Tinelli was sentenced to 15 days in the county jail in default of a $25 fine and costs for littering the highway, while the juveniles were each fined $10 for disorderly conduct.

FAILURE to make the curve on the first overhead bridge west of Warren on Route 6 Monday afternoon resulted in a two car accident and $200 damage.

ADMITS HOLD-UP. Nunzi DeMarco, 55-year-old Newark, N. Y., man charged with the armed hold-up of the Shadylawn Tourist camp at Starbrick last Sunday evening, confessed to the crime Wednesday but claimed he only made off with $80 instead of $450 as owner-manager William Manning claimed.

DeMarco pulled a .45 automatic on Manning, a former employee of the accused in Newark, on Sunday evening and made off with $300 in cash and $150 in checks, according to the owner.

The New Yorker was picked up by Constable Jim Higginbotham the following morning when he drove by the Starbrick establishment. He had spent the night in a Warren hotel, where his gun was also found unloaded, as DeMarco claimed it was during the stick-up.

The accused first entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before justice Fred Berry on Tuesday, but changed his mind Wednesday when he stated he was attempting to collect $500 Manning owed him before he took the money from gun point.

Manning had told police DeMarco was attempting to borrow money from him, which he said he needed badly, and the owner was going to give him $10 to get back home. DeMarco is being held in Warren County Jail awaiting court.

Oilman's Death Reveals Typical American Saga

When Harry A. Logan, of Warren, died of a heart attack the evening of March 13, another of those success stories which have come to represent America in the eyes of the world was terminated. Starting as a clerk and bookkeeper in a veneer factory which he left in 1902, his death found him president of the United Refining Company which he helped establish and the success of which was due to his work, courage, and abilities.

He also was president of the Emblem Oil Company, a member of the Board of directors of the National Transit Company of Oil City, on the board of the American Petroleum Institute, and a director of the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association.

He was a trustee of the National Petroleum Association, serving as its president in 1942. And he was a member of the Pennsylvania Society and the Newcomen Society in North America.

The supplying and transportation of oil during the last war was one of the problems presented Mr. Logan during those critical years. He was appointed a member of the Petroleum Industry War Council by Harold Ickes, Secretary of Interior, and served on several of its committees. Born the son of a pioneer oilman in the Bradford area crude oilfields, he left one of the most progressive refineries in the nation. His son, Harry A. Logan, Jr. is vice president of the United Refinery, and his son-in-law, J. P. Wendell, is vice president of Emblem Oil Company.

While other refineries collapsed in the face of major competitors, United kept alive and prospered, a credit to the man who founded it and steered it through many rough years. Today both United and Emblem are looking ahead with an extensive modernization program in progress that will cost over two million dollars.

What a clerk had the courage to start fifty-five years ago, today is a commercial success, but the American way requires that its main ingredients must continue to be courage and a far look ahead. We hope that Harry A. Logan left these attributes as a part of his American legacy.

Also present from here were Senator Leroy Chapman, Paul E. Harrington, Charles R. Tranter, and LeRoy Schneck.

THE MIGHTY CHRYSLER

Most glamorous car in a generation

No other car even challenges its performance!

Here are some figures for comparison. We believe they talk louder than words, and that you will find this message worth reading.

So much has been said about the good looks of the 1957 Chrysler that you may have the impression its reputation rests on styling alone. The truth is it's even more impressive in action. Three performance figures prove this. Here is the first: Chrysler's Firepower V-8 engine packs 325 hp (and up to 375 hp in the Chrysler 300-C), tops in the industry.

Is horsepower the only way you judge performance? Certainly not. There's engine displacement and torque. Chrysler's displacement is 392 cu. in. What about torque, the real pay-dirt power that turns the wheels? Chrysler's torque is 430 lb.-ft. at 2800 rpm, again tops in the industry.

More power than you need? Maybe. But it means unquestioned command of the highway when you want it. It means your Chrysler will stay like new much longer because it can loaf where other cars strain. So you see, when we call this car the Mighty Chrysler we mean just that . . . the mightiest on the highway! Come in and drive it soon.

SLUM CLEARANCE

Slums cover a subject which most of us do not consider a problem that applies to communities in this area. Slums to us are a condition you find in the big cities, and we give small attention to the subject as related directly to us. Is that correct thinking?

The word "slum" may be unfortunate. It is a word you hesitate to use when speaking of a specific building or area. However, we have buildings and groups of buildings in most of our Warren county towns that would qualify under such a heading if they were located in New York, Philadelphia, or some other city. And if they are not good enough for the city, why should we tolerate them?

The state Redevelopment Authority is offering much help along this line and at very small cost to the local community. This is especially true when the improved property value is considered. Actually the average town could make money through a bit of slum clearance, and by money we mean in cold cash.

Let us consider an imaginary building in one of our local communities. Supposing it, or two or three buildings, covers a fair-sized lot on a downtown street. It is an old building, poorly kept up, and reaping a high rent for the landlord, considering its low value.

He probably is asking a high price for this building because of his income from it. As a building it may look as though a good wind would give it a ride. The property around it suffers in value, and the community is losing tax money.

Perhaps these buildings, or this building, can be purchased for $20,000. A high price and probably double what they are worth. So high that no one who wants to erect a new and valuable building on this site can afford to purchase it.

However, under the National Housing Act the federal government will match state and local funds on a two to one basis. This means that if the town were to put up $4,000 the state would match it, and the federal government would double that total, making a sum of $24,000. Enough to buy it, tear it down, and grade the land.

There is little doubt that some one might be interested in the lot for $4,000 and up would go a modern building, either for housing or for business. The community has its money back, the property around it has been increased in value and the lot involved now is a real asset. It may even be contributing to the earned income of the community . . . and the area.

This is a small scale example, but it reveals how the redevelopment assistance plan can work to our advantage in a variety of ways other than those usually considered. Here we find state and federal funds helping us with the job of providing sites within the borders of our communities. And at a small cost to us.

You can find many projects which require good sites . . . parking lots, public buildings, schools, industry, homes . . . all of them requiring space in our towns, towns that are closing in and becoming crowded. And the crowding often is a major part of the vicious circle that makes a town old and prevents it from keeping pace.

Already some effort has been made to provide such help to communities in Warren county. The Warren County Development Association has been formed, with several towns represented. The county commissioners have been asked to form a planning commission, the cost of which will be financed mostly by state and federal funds. The commission would make a survey of the area for long range planning, and this also would be aided by state funds.

These preliminary steps are necessary if help is to be obtained. We also must complete preliminary plans, and must complete the master plan to an extent that the new use for the redevelopment site has been determined to the satisfaction of both the state and federal agencies.

WATER GOES UP

The price of water is about to go up in Warren for the first time since 1922. Without even looking at the books we assume that this must be a fair request. If it isn't the water company certainly must have been making a huge profit in those days when the cost of operation was much lower than it is today.

The new tariff has been filed with the utility commission and will be effective on May 15, 1957, if it is approved. The percentage of increase is forty per cent. This is an average of 2-1/4 cents a day to the customers, or $8.13 a year.

You who never go over the base rate of three dollars every three months, will be paying $1.20 more. Your bill will be $4.20.

There will be no increase to the North Warren customers, though the cost will go up for the authority which buys the water from the Warren Water Company. This authority has had sufficient margin to allow it to absorb the increase.

PA, LEADS IN GAS

Though Pennsylvania does not even rate among the leaders when it comes to having natural gas reserves and producing natural gas, it does lead all states in the amount of gas held in underground storage. It has 326 billion cubic feet. Ohio is second with 283 billion.

This explains why we should be just as interested as Texas when it comes to the natural gas bill which would take federal controls off the price of transported gas. Texas leads the nation in reserves. It has about half of them, 112.7 trillion cubic feet, or about 47 per cent.

It suggests that the biggest producer obviously would like to raise the price on the 5.3 trillion cubic feet it transported last year, which was 48.9 per cent of the nation's total. And the residents of Pennsylvania who will pay for the largest amount of gas stored, naturally also will be fascinated by such increases.

THE REAL WINNER

Charles Van Doren's winning of a $129,000 jackpot on the quiz show "Twenty-one" caused a nation-wide stir but actually the man was meagerly paid when one considers the services rendered to sponsors and producers of the show. Mr. Van Doren was on the program for 14 weeks, at roughly $9,214 per week. For this sum, producers had a show that hit the top bracket in popularity, sponsors had their product advertised on every side and the network profited from its top-ranking show. A half-hour Hollywood film may cost as much as $30,000 or $40,000 a week and cause never a ripple. "Twenty-one" and all the other give-away quiz shows appear to be generous-hearted Santa Clauses but TV's canny business men know whose stocking gets filled the full-est.

GLEASON WON'T STARVE

Jackie Gleason has done a weekly television comedy show for the past seven years. The last two seasons have seen his popularity wane and his rating go down. Now, his manager, George Durgom, has officially stated that the comedian would make no television commitments for the 57-58 season. He further stated that since there would be no series of Gleason shows next year the program's troupe would disband following the final June 22 show on the CBS network.

However, we can't feel too sorry about Mr. Gleason and his voluntary vacation. According to Mr. Durgom, the funny-man star has a fifteen-year contract with CBS that guarantees him $100,000 per year, whether he works or not.

WATCH THIS ONE

The government has its nose to the ground sniffing out signs of monopoly in the International Boxing Club's tight hold on televised ring events. Results of the federal investigation may bring some changes in ABC's Wednesday night and NBC's Friday night telecasts.

MOVIES ANSWER TO TV?

Several weeks ago this column mentioned the Bartlesville, Okla., experiment in television in which current movies are distributed to home viewers by wire line. Now the Oklahoma idea has spread into Texas where at least twenty towns including Fort Worth and Houston, are giving it a whirl.

Telemovies, not to be confused with toll or subscription TV, is simply a system in which current movies are piped into your home and shown on your tv screen. In Bartlesville, residents pay $9.50 per month for the "utility". The Texas system will present 13 shows per month on an eight or nine-hour daily schedule.

COMING AND GOING

LELAND HAYWARD, producer of many stage and movie hits, signed a five-year contract with CBS-TV to produce one ninety-minute show annually plus one program series each year.

DINAH SHORE will star in about twenty shows in the Chevy series, for NBC next year.

"TWENTIETH CENTURY" begins next fall, on CBS-TV Sunday evenings, 6:30 to 7:00. The series will present a pictorial history of great personalities and events since 1900.

"VOICE OF FIRESTONE" concert series on radio continuously for twenty-eight years will not return to that medium next fall although it will remain on television. It will be an ABC-TV program, beginning Monday night, September 9 at a new hour, 9 to 9:30 p. m.

"TELEPHONE HOUR", another concert series, has in indefinite future. An NBC Monday night radio show, sponsored by the Bell System, its contract was recently extended to July 1. What happens after that will be decided by the sponsor in June.

"NOAH'S ARK" was dropped recently by NBC in favor of a mystery drama series, "Panic". Jack Webb, of Noah's Ark, has received so many letters deploring the termination of the program that it may be picked up by another network.

THREE NEW programs have joined NBC-TV's list of Saturday daytime shows between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. "The Gumby Show", a children's program featuring a "three-dimensional" character made of plastic clay and equipped with stop-motion animation, made its debut last Saturday morning from 10:30 to 11. "True Story", at 12 noon, stars Kathi Norris as story editor, and "Detective's Diary" stars Donald Gray in the adventures of private eye Mark Saber.

PRIVATE SECRETARY, starring Ann Sothern, and destined to be dropped from its Sunday p. m. spot in favor of the dancing Champions, may turn up in a weekly Tuesday half-hour format for Lever Bros. "Dove" soap and Schaeffer Pen, starting April 2.

SPORTS PARADE

BOXING - Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico and Carmelo Costa of Brooklyn will clash in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden at 10 p. m. Friday night, March 22. The bout will be covered by NBC radio and television. The Berrios-Costa fight leads off the elimination series to determine retired Sandy Saddler's successor as world featherweight champion. Meeting in the ring for the first time, Berrios is given a slight edge over Costa, the former ranking third and Costa fourth among contenders for the vacant 126-pound crown. The winner of Friday night's bout will take on Hogan (Kid) Bassey, British Empire champion from Nigeria, and the winner of that bout will then meet France's Cherif Hamia for the featherweight title.

WHITHER DO WE FLY?

Flying continues as a means of transportation that is no more than leisure time fun for many. But it has not grown since the war as was anticipated. There was talk of inexpensive planes that anyone could fly safely, and a plane in every garage was anticipated by some, but today's plane is a long way from the garage. In fact, most of them can't even land on the Warren airport.

And the cost has not come down to even the present inflationary pocketbook. A plane is in the Cadillac class, and the risk is greater than the Cadillac. At least you can insure the Cadillac, and the cost of insuring yourself while driving it is not prohibitive.

So what happened? Certainly these geniuses in the engineering field who have replaced the piston with the jet and the jet with the missile could build us a flivver plane that would land on the garage roof, and keep out of a spin with the motor dead, and even if we didn't know much about flying.

And we think they could, but there are a pair of reasons that they haven't. The money is not in making such planes, and the best minds have been busy keeping us in pace with the potential enemy.

As one aircraft industry executive said in a speech, the modern airplane race is like Alice in Wonderland who wondered why in that strange land she visited they had to move so fast and get nowhere. When she complained about it by saying that where she came from if you ran very fast for very long you got somewhere, the queen answered, "A slow sort of country. Now here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that."

And so it goes with aircraft today. It takes all the hustling we can do and billions of dollars to keep up with the technological pace. To get ahead and to stay ahead requires running and spending twice as fast. To give you some idea of why this is true and why you are not flying a plane in your spare hours, the planes at the end of World War II were getting up to 450 miles an hour, and jets came out at the end of the war that would do 600 miles an hour.

Today's superjets do 1400 miles an hour? The piston jobs have been retired. Planes are weapons, not vehicles. The pilots do not aim and fire the guns. Automatic fire control systems lock on the enemy plane, zero in and fire missiles or cannon with complete accuracy.

And already these are becoming antiques. Missiles are the coming weapon that will replace the jets. Three years ago we were spending ten per cent of our air budget on missiles and 90 per cent on aircraft. Next year we will spend 35 per cent on it on missiles. And by 1961 we will be spending half of it on missiles.

Those are peace time figures. If war comes, throw the budget away. However, the air isn't one big cloud. The airlines at least are growing (there is money to be made there), and the 42 million passengers in 1956 will increase to 118 million by 1970 says the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Even by 1960 it is expected to increase to 66 million.

Overseas flying now handles 4 million a year, and by 1960 is expected to be 6.2 million.

How about you? They will get around to you when war even in peacetime stops costing us fifty billion or more a year. Meanwhile, you can keep hoping our engineers and our pilots maintain a top speed. Otherwise it may not make much difference.

MIDDLE EAST SPEAKER

In view of the very debatable situation in the Middle East, Chautauqua is presenting an interesting speaker this summer, Harry B. Ellis, foreign news editor of the Christian Science Monitor. He will give five lectures the week of July 15.

He was appointed Middle East correspondent in 1951 and his stories have included the oil crisis in Iran, the fall of Mossadegh, the overthrow of King Farouk, and the rise of Nasser in Egypt. He has written a book, "Heritage of the Desert--The Arabs and the Middle East".

He also has quite a war record, earned with the 17th and 82nd Airborne Divisions, where he received the Bronze Star for the capture of sixteen German soldiers after a glider landing across the Rhine.

MARIAN ANDERSON

A major feature of this summer's musical program for the area will be the appearance of Marian Anderson at Chautauqua on July 1. She was front page news a year ago when she became the first of her race to sing with the Metropolitan Opera. Last fall her autobiography was published, "My Lord, What A Morning!"

Toscanini, hearing her in Salzburg, during one of her tours, said, "A voice like yours is heard once in a hundred years." Sibelius, Finnish composer, said, "The roof of my house is too low for your voice." She has performed in 1,450 concerts before over five million people. To these you can add the millions on radio and tv. Those who can make it on July 1 will be hearing one of the greatest singers of this or any century.

RAMBLERS LOSE CROWN

The Warren Ramblers were dethroned of their Chautauqua County Sure-Shot tournament title Tuesday night by a strong Falconer Lions team that handed out a 65-47 lacing to the locals. Warren won the intermediate division title last year at the Jamestown Boys Club.

Big boy for the new champions was Bill Chandler, who piled up 30 points and won the "most valuable player" award. Tops for Warren in the scoring column Tuesday was Steve Lindquist with 19. Lou VanBlois scored 11 and was named "best sportsman".

Earlier in the semi-finals Warren defeated Locker-Woodfield 63-60 with Lindquist starring with 30 counters. In the opener the Ramblers downed the Jr. Trotters 46-44 with Lindquist again high man with 12.

SHEFFIELD WINS TOURNEY

After struggling through a bad first period, Sheffield's RockSpring Park team rolled on to a 73-69 victory over the Warren Seniors and the annual YMCA Open Invitational basketball championship.

The county lads trailed by seven points at the end of the first stanza but took a one-point edge in the second and added three more points on in the finale.

Leading the victory was Steffan's 21 points, while Drexler and Kulka added 16 and 14 respectively. Ed Rickerson was high pointmaker in the game for the Seniors with 29.

In the consolation match between the Junior-Soph squad and Emersons the youngsters emerged 98-86 victors. The laurels went to the victor's Bill Mervine and the loser's Mike Kotmair who blazed with 33 counters each.

During semi-final tourney play on the "Y" court last Thursday the veteran Sheffield players were 83-79 too much for the Junior-Sophs and the Seniors edged Emersons 68-67.

High point men in these games were Karkosky, 28; Drexler, Wolfe and Rickerson, 24; Hoffman, 23; Danielson, 20.

COUNTY TEAMS SPLIT

The Warren Style Shop quintet racked up an 82-56 triumph over the Franklin "Y" while Sheffield Rock Spring Park was losing to Swansons of Titusville in the annual Brookville tournament this week.

In taking their opening game the Warren outfit registered their 41st victory against six defeats for the season. Leo Corkery, a Jamestown and Erie Pro import, paced the victory with 22 marks and Ed Rickerson added to the total with 18.

The Sheffield five took a 61-48 lacing from Titusville despite an 18-point scoring effort on the part of Fran Wagner.

CHURCH LEAGUE PLAY

The Swedes of St. Paul's Lutheran extended their second half Church loop lead to five straight last Thursday night by knocking off Grace Methodist 58 to 57, as Lawton, Whitehill and Terry joined in a 47-point scoring effort. Haslet was tops for Grace with 18.

A night cap had the First Baptist shelling it out 61-52 to the First Presbyterian. Top honors in the contest went to the Presby's Ostergard for a 24 point performance.

On Monday the Grace five nipped the Presbyterians 71-66. Haslet and Kyler accounted for 28 and 23 of the victors points respectively, but again Ostergard shined and dumped 32 through the hoop for the losers.

LOSE AT CLEARFIELD

Warren high's contenders in the PIAA regional wrestling meet at Clearfield last week end were defeated. Don Brian, previously unbeaten in the 127-pound ranks, was defeated by John Byers of State College, where former Warren coach Homer Barr is now in the boss's chair.

Losing in the 103-pound class was Gail Page. Victor over him was Clearfield's Mauriano.

The state meet in State College would have been the next step for the Dragon grapplers if they had scored victories.

CHAMPIONS of the annual Warren YMCA Invitational basketball tournament played off last week was this Sheffield Rock Spring Park aggregation consisting of (l. to r.) Coach J. Korchak, M. Kulka, D. Elmquist, B. Drexler, T. Cashmere, G. Andrews, F. Wagner, K. Thompson, M. Steffan, B. Troutman, and manager Rich Moore.

SPORTSMAN TO SPEAK

Lou Klewer, one of the nationally known writers and outdoor editor for The Toledo Blade the past 30 years, will be presented here in a film narration on April 9. The program, under the sponsorship of the Warren Field and Stream club, will be held in Beaty Auditorium and will be open to the public for a donation of $1, adults, and 50 cents, student.

DISTRICT MATCH HERE

The district PIAA rifle match will be staged on the Beaty range in Warren this Saturday with schools competing from Bradford, Meadville and Warren. The winner of the match goes to the state finals. Firing Saturday is to commence at 12 o'clock noon.

EIGHT VETERANS BACK

Coach Richard L. Praetzel will have a nucleus of four senior and four junior returning lettermen to use in prepping for Youngsville high's opening track meet on April 10.

The returning seniors are Frank Gruttaria, Jim Smith, Jim Zeedar and Steve Rensma, while representing the junior class are Bill Moniak, Jack Brenneman, Neil Piereson and John McCanna.

In the 1956 campaign the Eagle thinclads piled up one dual victory, two triangular wins and a quadrangular meet triumph against three losses.

The squad also won the District 10 Class B title and was represented in three events at the state meet.

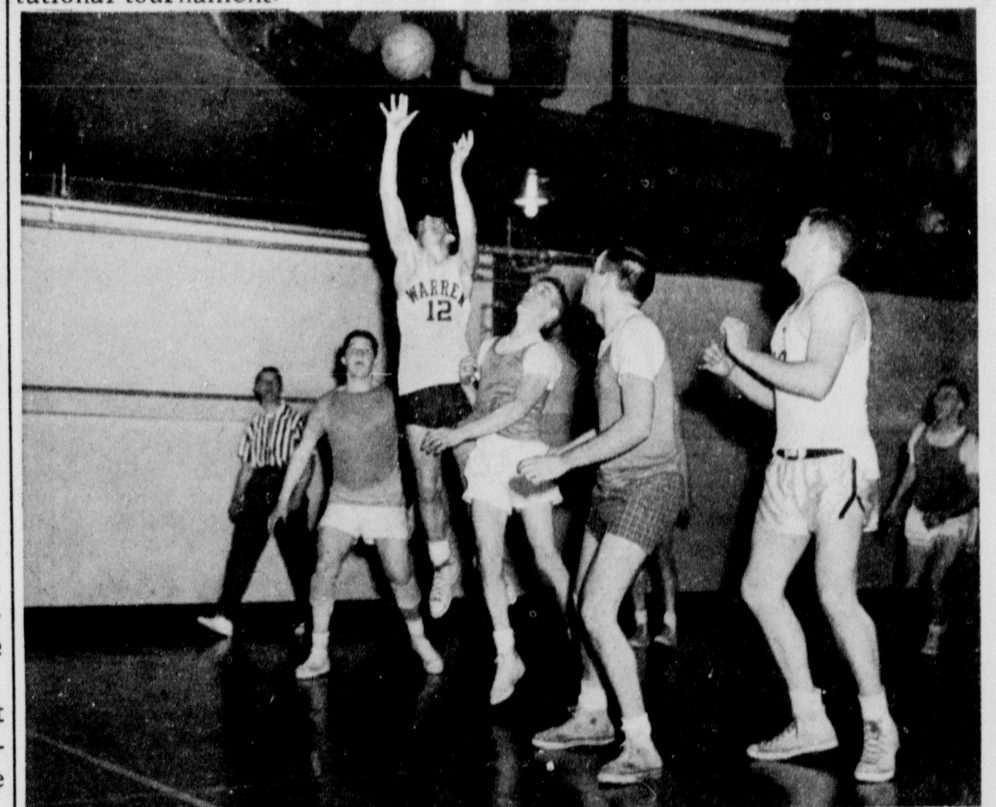

For the 1957 campaign the Eagles will have the following schedule: April -- 10, at Harborcreek; 17, Smethport and Port Allegany at Smethport; 23, at Port Allegany; 26, Corry and Warren at Corry.

May -- 1, Smethport and Ridgeway at Smethport; 3, Northern Area at home; 4, UAV league at Youngsville; 7, at Oil City; 10, at Warren; 15, at North East; 18, district meet; 25, state meet.

I GOT IT. Despite the sleepwalking form of a Warren player, Sheffield's Fran Wagner took this rebound in last Thursday's semi-final round of the YMCA Open Invitational tournament.

The Rock Spring Park combination bested the Warren Juniors 83-79 and went on to take the title from the seniors in the finals Friday.

AN UNIDENTIFIED Warren Senior tossed this one-handed jump shot in heated action during the final period of last Thursday's game in the "Y" tourney. The schoolboys won a close 68-67 decision over Emersons to enter the finals.

STONE HILL FIRE. This was the second call received by North Warren Volunteer firemen last Saturday afternoon. A shack on Stone Hill, off Beech st. in Warren, caught fire somehow during the late afternoon and was noticed by youngsters who moved into action and kept the blaze from spreading into the woods before firemen arrived.

North Warren and Starbrick firefighters lugged tanks of water up the hill to put a final damper on things.

We note that the daily reported a figure of $218,000 to cover the cost of water, sewage, and roads for the proposed new Warren area high school. At the very highest we doubt if it would top $136,000.

It knocks down like this in approximate figures. If Warren won't let the school hook onto its sewer, it may cost $50,000 to provide sewage disposal on the spot. If the most expensive kind of roads are built, and we doubt if the traffic into the school will warrant it, the price might be $61,000. And the price of a water system will be $25,000. Add them up.

WE INVITE THEM

We notice that the Warren Times Mirror believes it is the first Warren paper to publish an edition over twenty pages without hand insertion. Members of the T-M staff are invited to visit our plant where they will see the first electronic machine of its kind. We have been using it for over a year and it assembles 32 pages!

LOCAL OPTION

Local option votes will be cast in Conewango and Farmington twps. this spring. Farmington is wet now and dry forces have petitioned for a vote to see if that can be changed. Conewango is dry and petitioners would make it otherwise.

TARBELL ARTICLE

An article on Ida Tarbell's Standard Oil history appears in the winter edition of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Magazine. It is written by Ernest C. Miller, of Warren, author of three oil books and active in historical circles. Miss Tarbell, born in Erie, and raised in the Oil City and Titusville oil fields, became one of the nation's leading writers, doing 116 articles for magazines and writing twenty books. Her Standard Oil history revealed the independent's difficulties during the early oil days and was not enjoyed by the big operators. It proved to be a sensational series.

MORE OIL

"Which Tower Goes Where" is the name of an article appearing in the March issue of Petroleum Refiner, a trade magazine which specializes in the exchange of ideas concerning refining processes in the petroleum industry. Author of the piece is William D. Harvert, chief engineer of the United Refining Company. The exchange of ideas in this publication makes it possible for companies, large and small, to learn of the latest methods used in the refining field.

MORE BABIES WANTED

Miss Gertrude Wiltsie, chairman of the Russell Dr. VerMilyea memorial fund, is looking for more of the late physician's "babies". The committee's goal is to have one thousand people brought into this world by the popular country doctor contribute to the memorial chimes. So far the fund totals $212, and 31 babies have reported.

COURSES WANTED?

Anyone in the area who would like to have the Jamestown Community college add a course to its evening division should make their suggestion to William H. Schlifke, director of the college evening school. Evening courses are for adults, and suggestions of this kind have resulted in courses including a professional secretary series, a review for the state examination for professional engineers in structural design and basic engineering, insurance, and several special projects in conjunction with such groups as the furniture association, the state forestry college, the air force reserve, and the film institute.

ROSE NAMED PRESIDENT

Will Rose, retired Cambridge Springs newspaper owner, has been elected president of the Edinboro State Teachers College board of trustees. Continuing on the new board is Mrs. Donald Conaway, of Warren.

DISABLED DEADLINE

People who have become unable to work because of severe and long-lasting disabilities have until June 30, 1957, to freeze their social security at the rate with which they were credited when they became incapacitated. Thus they will not have the inactive years counted against them. At the present time the freeze is retroactive two and a half years. After June 30 it will be no more than a year.

Social security officials are in the state armory every Tuesday and Friday from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. But come early. The line is long and those on the end may not be served.

IMPORTANT ADDRESS

You mail it to District Director of Internal Revenue, New Federal Building, Pittsburgh 30, Pa., with your check payable to "Internal Revenue Service". And the deadline is April 15.

LABOR COUNCIL RESOLVES

We have before us two resolutions of the Warren County Central Labor Council which were adopted at the February 28 meeting. One approves the proposed plan for the integration of the state employment retirement plan with the old age survivor's insurance, as provided by the federal government and the state general assembly. This would provide the state employees with a retirement program superior to those of most other states.

The other resolution supports an eleven-point program that will provide for civil service, grievance procedures, unemployment compensation, sick leave and vacation time accumulation, hospitalization, uniform working conditions, adjustment of pay scales in the classification schedule and other improvements that will alleviate the conditions of state employees.

HONESTY PAYS

A recent survey has shocked many old timers in the advertising field. It revealed that hard-hitting, repetitious, and obviously phony testimonials do not pay off as well as those which at least look plausible. Credulous and ethical advertising is being proved the best. Revolutionary and unbelievable!

LET THE PUBLIC KNOW

Two bills now before the state legislature would open some doors which have been closed to the public in many cases in the past. One would give any citizen the right to inspect all state, county, township, municipal, and school district records, as well as any records of commissions, boards, or authorities created by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision.

The other would open the doors of governmental bodies, such as councils, school boards, township supervisors, and admit the public. Such meetings would not be official unless announced in advance, and no action taken at such meetings would be official if the public were excluded.

Notices of such meetings must be posted in the meeting place and on request must be submitted to newspapers and radio stations in the county, city, borough, or township where the body calling the meeting is located.

The bills are sponsored by the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' association . . . and about time!

SLEEPER?

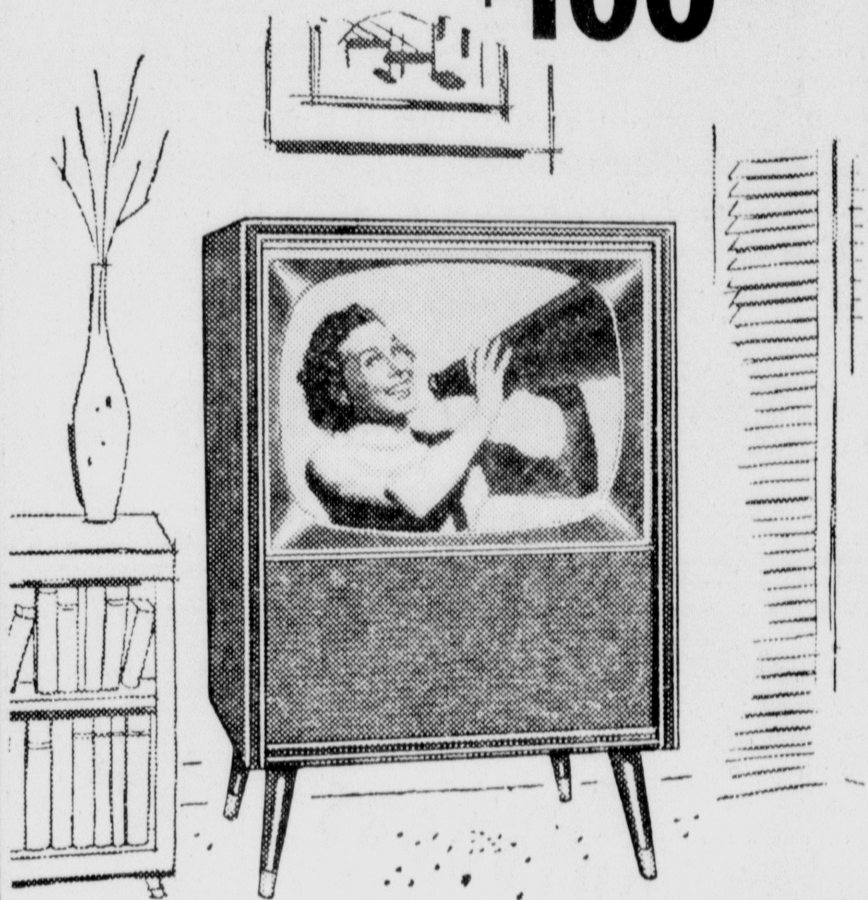

We notice an amendment that has been introduced by several Pennsylvania assemblymen, including our own Allen Gibson. It would make it necessary for municipalities to secure the approval of the electorate prior to organizing authorities or extending their scope. With two authorities shaping up in our own area, this could come home to roost in our polls.

What we want to know is what happens when the state says you must build a sewage plant but the voters turn down the bond issue that will finance it?

DO SQUIRRELS TRAVEL?

We have had old hunters tell us of seeing squirrels in the woods by the hundreds, apparently moving cross country to a new home. However, some scientists always have denied that there is evidence of such travel. We know of one hunter, whose word we certainly could trust, who stood in the midst of one migration and saw them slaughtered by gunmen in the days before game limits.

Our only experience with large numbers of squirrels has been to catch them just outside their woodlot, chasing around trees or over buildings in a nearby field. We once ruined an entire hunting day by walking into a sugar bush which was being used as an early morning picnic grounds by so many squirrels we couldn't count them and wouldn't dare place an estimate on the number.

We started firing and in four quick shots had as many greys. We then lost interest and let the rest of them head for the timbers. We walked to another woods and spent the day hunting the other two allowed in the limit, and not very enthusiastically. The day's sport was gone.

Now we find that a recent tagging experiment reveals that squirrels do travel. Dr. Ward M. Sharp, leader of the Wildlife Research Unit at the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station, received data from hunters in a wide area who had shot squirrels which he had tagged. The study was made in Cameron county where squirrels have lush and lean years. Five squirrels had traveled distances of 6, 12, 22, 43, and 62 miles, respectively, from their former dens.

A majority of these were ladies, suggesting that the girls are not as attached to the home tree as the male. In Huntington county where food does not suffer so many scarce spells, no squirrel had traveled more than three miles.

Dr. Sharp suggests that den trees should be preserved. It takes a century or two for a good den tree to develop, and it may be cut thoughtlessly in a forest improvement program. Usually they are not good saw timber and are of small value as firewood.

Given a fairly consistent supply of native and cultivated food, and a den that has become the old home—stead, most squirrels obviously prefer to stay in the old home woods. We have seen squirrel hunting ruined by woodcutters who ignored these facts. If a half dozen big beeches had been left, the squirrel population would have stayed. And the big den trees that were cut had little value compared with the many healthy ones taken out of the same woods.

Condensed down, the findings seem to be that squirrels will travel, but they don't want to. All they ask is a good home and food for the family. Then they will stay around to be shot.

FOOD NEEDED

It was a good winter for wildlife. Due to a low supply of natural food from last fall, a heavy winter would have covered what little there was and made existence difficult. However, the light snow helped the animals find their food, and those of us who are dedicated to perpetuating the lives of those we want to kill for sport have provided additional fodder.

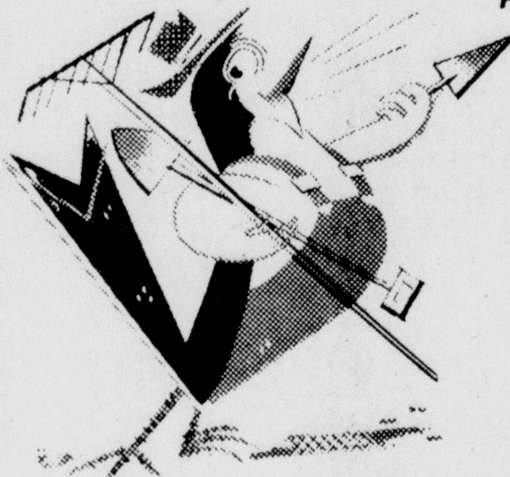

However, the trouble is not past. During this period before the insects hatch out, plants take on their rich green leaves, and the berries pop out, food is an acute problem and the Game Commission in co-operation with informed sportsmen will continue to supply corn for a few weeks.

This isn't just a case of keeping alive what already is there. This is the mating season and animals are more productive when they are healthy and strong. So feed them to assure future generations.

ALSO TRAVELERS

Our comments on the traveling propensities of hungry squirrels coincidentally teams up with a game commission release about a turkey gobbler which was raised at the wild turkey farm, leg banded, and re-
